Professors Gaines and Hunter are expected Monday, fresh from their vacation, a part of which they enjoyed in the mountains of Virginia and North Carolina, respectively. Professor Mitchell, after a delightful trip to Europe, where he spent the summer, is expected to reach the city on Wednesday.

Richmond College has some years benefited by the presence of a few co-eds. Last year there were twelve young ladies from the city who took advantage of the opportunity offered of instruction in branches of higher learning. This year President Boatwright expects fully that branches of higher learning. This year President Boatwright expects fully that number again, and a few more. Thus while the college is not likely to have the experience of many co-educational colleges of having a third or a half the student body women, yet it is proud of these earnest young women, who make such excellent students and often stand at the head in their closses.

In Fine Shape.

In Fine Shape.

The grounds and buildings have been under the direction of Dr. Charles H. Ryland, superintendent of grounds, put into prime condition, and everything is now ready for the incoming students. Fethusiasm is the proper way to describe the athletic situation. Manager Cutceins has arranged an attractive schedule of games for the foot-ball team, and is making all other necessary preparations for the season. On Friday Cantain J. B. Webster arrived and immediately put the snuad to work in preliminary practice. Several of last year's team are already on hand, and others are expected within a few days. Altogether the football outlook is, most encouraging. The ambition of the boys is for clean, sportsmanlike college contests, and the same spirit, they believe, animates all the college teams of the State.

AN EDUCATIONAL CENTER Richmond Has Advantages That

Richmond Has Advantages That Few Appreciate.
Editor of the Times-Dispatch:
Sir.—Nowhere has your valuable raper shown more intelligent loyalty to our city than the publicity which you have given from time to time to our great commercial enterprises, and the rare advantages which they have in their location. It fibs occurred to me that it would not be out of place at just this time of the year to call the attention of our people to the unusual advantages which they enjoy from an educational standpoint. standpoint.
We may be justly proud of the growing

We may be justly proud of the growlag efficiency of our primary scools, both private and public. These, together with our night schools, notably the Mechanica Institute, and the schools under the ouspices of the Y. M. C. A., give our boys and girls the very best facilities for fundamental training, and it is a source of pride to remember that the system does not pause here. Richmond College and our two well-equipped medical schools are waiting for the ambitious boys who have completed their high school work, nad who desire higher academic or technical training in the law or medicine.

school work, and who desire higher academic or technical training in the law or medicine.

But I am not quite sure that all of our people are conscious of the magnificent opportunity which lies at the very doors of our girls who desire a higher culture. The Woman's College, under the direction of Dr. Nelson, has grown so quietly into a really first-class college for young women, that one who makes a careful examination of its work for the first time, will be greatly surprised. Despite the fact that the school is as yet unendowed, the president, by rare business tact and long experience in educational work, has gathered together from time to time, a faculty which is unequalled by any school of its kind in the South. Here a girl from the high school, or any of our best preparatory private schools, may have the opportunity of pursuing her work in literature, science, music, or art into the recognized collegiate branches, and still retain the surroundings and comforts of her home life. The atmosphere of Christian culture which pervades the institution renders it a safe and helpful environment for the higher culture of our daughters. Let us not forget in this great commercial epoch of our city life, the real worth of our home listutions of learning, and be at least equally proud and loyal in our support.
